

Rottweiler Quiz

1. How many adult teeth does the Rottweiler have?
2. How many deciduous teeth does the Rottweiler have?
3. How many ratios are mentioned in the standard?
4. What is the height range for the dog?
5. What is the height range for the bitch?
6. What is the preferred eye color?
7. What is the difference between the head of the dog and the head of the bitch?
8. What is a Roman nose?
9. Why does the standard call for “Shoulders well laid back”?
10. What is the preferred inner mouth (gums) pigmentation color?
11. Pink gums are a serious fault, True or False?
12. Which tooth is most often found to be missing?
13. What is the preferred color of the markings?
14. What segment of the standard is most detailed?
15. On which area of Rottweiler anatomy should the undercoat be present?

Answers:

1. 42 2. 28 3. Three, (9 to 10, 60/40 or 3/2, depth of chest is 50% of the height or 1 to 1) 4. 24-27 inches dogs 5. 22-25 inches bitches 6. Uniform dark brown 7. There is no difference in the symmetry and ratios for the head of the Dog and Bitch, except for the depth of the stop and general size and mass. In the dog, the stop is more pronounced and the head is more massive in size. 8. A Roman nose occurs when the septum slants downward causing the topline of the muzzle to slant downward at the nostrils. 9. So the reach for the front arm can be at its maximum extension resulting in maximum efficiency during gait 10. Preferred dark. 11. True. 12. P1 lower left and right 13. Mahogany 14. The head. It contains 7 sub categories, 4 serious faults, 6 disqualifications. 15. Neck and Thighs

The Rottweiler Head Type Knowledge Quiz

1. What is the correct ratio of the Skull to Muzzle?
2. What shape should the topskull have when seen from a profile?
3. The eyes should be moderately deep set ? True or False?
4. A dome shaped skull is correct. True or False?
5. Loose flews are preferred. True or False?
6. Eyes of different color are a serious fault. True or False?
7. The term “lack of fill” under the eye refers to?
8. The term “wet” refers to?
9. A “Roman” nose is faulty? True or False?
10. What is “Winter Nose?”
11. Entropion is a disqualification. True or False?
12. “Fly away” ears are faulty? True or False?
13. Where is the stop?
14. The “Furrow” on the head refers to?
15. Unclear (sooty) markings on the muzzle are faulty? True or False?
16. The lower jaw should be strong? True or False?

Answers

1. 60/40 or 3/2 2. Slightly arched as seen from a profile 3. True 4.False. Dome shaped skulls are faulty and are always associated with too much pronunciation in the stop. Like the head of the Boxer. 5. False. Loose flews are a fault. They are usually accompanied with wet, throaty head types. 6. True. 7. The zygomatic arch. It means that the zygomatic arch is shallow 8. Loose skin at the jaw bone, under the throat and on the topskull. 9 True. The bridge of the muzzle should be straight. The tip of the nose should not have a dip in it.10. Winter nose refers to an anomaly, which causes the color of the nostrils to have a light colored line running up and down the nose. It is only seen during the winter months. 11. True 12. True. The standard states “Ears are to be set well apart, hanging forward with the inner edge lying tightly against the head. 13. The stop is located between the eyes. It should be well pronounced. 14. The channel that is seen running from the stop to the mid topskull. 15. True. 16. True. The end of the muzzle is broad with a well-developed chin.